Salt Lake police officers are accustomed to dealing with shady characters. But on Friday, their building will be filled with ghosts, goblins and maybe even Spider-Man.

For the second year in a row, the police department will open the Public Safety Building, 315 E. 200 South, from 1 to 4 p.m. for parents to take their children trick-or-treating.

"It creates a safe environment for children and provides a welcome change to the daily routine of our officers," said Police Chief Chris Burbank.

In addition to meeting members of the SWAT team, K9 unit and the bomb squad, children and their parents will also be able to see bugs and bats provided by the Utah Museum of Natural History, and snakes from Hogle Zoo.

Child ID kits will also be available.

For those who are going door-to-door in their neighborhoods, officers want to remind them to walk in groups, carry flashlights and never go inside a stranger's house. All young children should be accompanied by an adult or responsible teen.
